DIVERSITY OF THEORIES - INSTEAD OF INTELLECTUAL MONOCULTURE

Plural Economics is a growing grassroots political economic framework combining economic principles, experiences and theories according to planetary- & social needs & ethical guidelines. Values such as care, land, environment, interspecies relations, sustainability, de-growth are equally considered as wealth. Plural Economics finds value in the coexistence of diverse and even contradictory principles.

{poem} on Plural Economics what do we need ?

what does the water need ?
what does the butterfly need how can we breath ?
and how can we be warm ? safe, healthy? eat?
and see our far away friends ?

in search for new economics social, communitary, productive models but kind in need for language, definitions and analytical clarity changing the economic system a redefinition about how we see the world
biophysical limits
the worship of money dissecting structures agency, institutions, values, power relations

diversity of theories instead of intellectual monoculture multiple approaches from the different economic schools no matter for profit or donut, circular commons
across disciplines, people, kin and planet
